

The Miami Herald

October 15, 2008

'It' item: Sheryl Crow's clothing line

Sheryl Crow is all about shopping lately.

The Grammy winner has launched a casual clothing line, Bootheel Trading Co., named after the "boot heel" of Missouri, where she was born. Think rocker-chic T's and lots of jeans (available at Dillards).

Crow, 46, has also teamed up with Whole Foods Market for a reusable tote, launching in stores Wednesday. The Crow-signed A Better Bag is made from recycled plastic bottles and eliminates the need for those annoying plastic flyaways (though you know they're great garbage-can liners).

- A small size bag is 79 cents; large is 20 cents more. All of it goes to the Natural Resources Defense Council.

<http://www.miamiherald.com/entertainment/people/story/725061.html>